

Fire Retardant Legislation - Talk to the Experts

Fire Retardant Solutions Quality Assured

Qualifire specialises in fire retardancy alone. What this means for our clients is an absolute dedication to all aspects of fire retardancy with an emphasis on legislative compliance within the building industry.

Fire Retardancy Compliance and the BCA

Regardless of the size, shape or cost of a project, the very heart of moving from design to completion lies in compliance with the relevant codes and legislation for any number of items. Fire retardancy legislation is a seemingly minor issue among many others but has the potential to stall a project in its tracks, especially given current confusion as to which Standard should be used.

Ascertaining the relevant Australian Standard under the Building Code is the first step to compliance. This Standard is dependent on where the finished project is situated, for what purpose it is designed and which planning authority is involved. A public auditorium in a metropolitan area may cite AS1530, whereas a home located in a bushfire zone might fall under the auspices of AS3959.

Reaching Compliance

Qualifire assesses project-specific legislation and translates it into the mechanics of ensuring materials are fire retardant. Projects range from straightforward testing and reporting for compliant products through to the formulation of fire retardants for non compliant materials.

Research and Development

Qualifire also specialises in fire retardancy R&D, with an emphasis on ensuring materials and products are upgraded to meet developing requirements for fire retardancy. We place a strong emphasis on utilising the most environmentally friendly products in our work and strive towards a cleaner, greener solution to an age old problem.
